Unexpected assumption of the UAE, in advertising visits to Israel

They described the tourist wonders of Israel, including the site of Herod's Temple. Who can doubt that? Nevertheless, the PA went into an uproar, and the Emiratis took down the ad.

Letter to the Messianic Jews
[Hebrews] MJ 6.3
If G-d Permits

MJ 6.1-3 Therefore, leaving behind the initial lessons about the Messiah, let us go on to maturity...
And, God willing, this is what we will do.

NKJV And this we will do if God permits.

NIV And God permitting, we will do so.

Yaakov /Jas 4. 14-15 You do not know what your life will be like tomorrow. What is your life? For you are a vapor that appears for a little while and then vanishes. Instead you ought to say, “If ADONI wills, we will live and also do this or that.”

One population that faces the greatest uncertainty are our persecuted brothers and sisters in the faith.

We typically don't express ourselves part of the world
Christian movement, but theologically, we have LOTS in common. We flow with Evangelicals, Charismatics, and Synagogues.

Yn 15.19-20 If you were of the world, the world would love you as its own. But you are not of the world, since I have chosen you out of the world; therefore the world hates you.

“Remember the word I spoke to you: ‘A servant is not greater than his master.’ If they persecuted Me, they will persecute you also. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also.

1 Thes. 1.6 You also became imitators of us and of the Lord, having accepted the message in much tribulation [severe troubles], with the joy of the Ruach ha-Kodesh.

Acts 14.22 They were strengthening the souls of the talmidim / disciples, encouraging them to persevere in faith, and saying, “It is through many persecutions that we must enter the kingdom of God.”

So, is there persecution of the followers of Messiah
in the 21st century?

Hungarian Foreign Minister Péter Szijjártó noted that “Christianity is still the most persecuted religion on Earth.” Speaking at Monday’s online conference of the International Religious Freedom Alliance, he claimed some “260 million Christians faced persecution in the world today, and 3,000 had been killed this year [2020].”

Azbej told an online conference of rights group International Christian Concern that the number of Christians facing persecution globally rose from 245 million to 260 million over the past year.

Minister Szijjártó said, “eight Christians were killed daily on average.” He reported 9,500 attacks against Christian churches and facilities over the last year.

Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 16-
17, Dr. James
Dobson hosted Johnnie Moore.

Johnnie Moore. He is my very, very good friend, a man I respect very highly. He's also, for the last four years, been a colleague of mine on the White House Faith Advisory Board.

Johnnie serves on the United States Commission for International Religious Freedom. He serves as president of the Congress on Christian Leaders. He is also a founder of the KAIROS organization, company, a communication and public relations consultant firm that works with us.

Johnnie Moore: When I was a child, my family went through a traumatic divorce. It caused me to ask a lot of questions about my faith. I found the answers to those questions in the persecuted church

Just before my parents divorced, I was laying in my bed one night. I rolled over, and I looked at the wall. I can see it in my head now. I said, "God, I'm not really sure I've given my life to you, and so I want to do that right now." I count that as my salvation, when I was about 12. Then I started studying the Bible every night from 9:00 to 9:30.

My parents were in church every time the doors were open. We were a very, very Christian family, yet it didn't hold their marriage together. What I found was sometimes in America, we can have a form of godliness with no power. When you might lose your life today just because of being a believer, you don't have the luxury of having a form of godliness with no power. You either believe it or you don't. My passion for the persecuted church... I say I sort of found my faith again by finding the testimony of the persecuted believers.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center (SWC) is a Jewish, pro-Israel, human rights organization established in 1977 by Rabbi Marvin Hier. The Center is known for Holocaust research and remembrance, hunting Nazi war criminals, combating anti-Semitism, tolerance education, defending Israel, and its Museum of Tolerance.

Newsweek describes Marvin Hier as the following, "Hier is one phone call away from almost every world leader, journalist and Hollywood studio head. He is the dean and founder of the Simon Wiesenthal Center."

Rabbi Abraham Cooper (successor to Heir) is the associate dean and director of
Global Social Action
Agenda for the Simon Wiesenthal Center.

Johnnie Moore: Rabbi Cooper and I are separated by 45 years. He lives on one side of the country, I live on a different side of the country. He's an Orthodox Jewish rabbi. I'm an evangelical Christian, and yet we're united together in our passion for action.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center where Rabbi Cooper is, was the first organization in the world, a Jewish organization, not a Christian one, that said that ISIS was guilty of genocide against Christians in Iraq and Syria. It was Rabbi Cooper who encouraged me to go to Nigeria with him.

Right before COVID-19 shut down the world Rabbi Abraham Cooper from Los Angeles, and I traveled to Nigeria. We spent days meeting with victims and hearing the most horrific stories I've ever heard in my life.

One whole village came to see us. We thought a representative of the village was going to come. The whole village crowded in our hotel room. Two weeks before, everything had been burned down. There's still adult men in clinical shock sitting across from us.

They had hoped that as a couple of Americans, a rabbi and a Christian pastor, that just somehow, somehow that America could be their hope. The only promise I made them was, "We will be your voice." Their voice is silent.

I told Rabbi Cooper, I don't know that we can solve the problem in Nigeria, but we can make sure that a day doesn't go by when the Nigerian government isn't feeling heat from people all around the world to get their act together. We decided to immediately write a book.

The rest of the story:

Nigeria is the largest country in Africa, has the largest economy in Africa, 10th largest oil reserves in the world. It's a very, very important country.

7 out of 10 persecuted Christians in the world that will die this year will die in Nigeria.

Boko Haram has caused Christian churches in Nigeria to be burned down, homes ransacked, their children abducted, women and young girls savagely raped, and thousands have been grotesquely murdered. Others have simply vanished.

Boko Haram killed more Christians in Northeast Nigeria than ISIS did at their height in Iraq and Syria. whole villages, thousands of villages, totally burned to the ground.

Cars being pulled over on the side of the road... They ask if you're a Christian or a Muslim. The Muslims are let free. The Christian men are killed. The women are sold as slaves.

One state alone in Nigeria has had 700 or 800 churches burned to the ground. In this village they had burned, they found the cell phone of one of the perpetrators. In his contacts on the cell phone were members of the government and the police. No one's prosecuted. Nothing ever happens.

Just last year, where Boko Haram went in. They kidnapped over 100 young women. They let every one of them go except for one. Her name is Leah Sharibu. We were there on the second anniversary of her captivity. Leah Sharibu wasn't released because she refused to convert to Islam.

A previous administration fought tooth and nail against designating Boko Haram a terrorist organization.

In a UN report, not some right-wing religious freedom organization, a United Nations report said that between 50 and 70 little children had bombs strapped to them and were remotely blown up in the middle of Christian cities, and they wouldn't designate this group a terrorist organization?

A previous administration refused to designate ISIS guilty of genocide in Iraq and Syria, despite what they were doing. However, because of the pressure put on Congress, we had a unanimous resolutions passed in the House and in the Senate saying that ISIS was guilty of genocide.

The US militarily eliminated the caliphate in Iraq and Syria, ISIS is gone, but we have a problem brewing in Western Africa. If you think the Syrian refugee crisis caused a problem in the world and the Syrian civil war, you haven't seen anything yet if Western Africa fails.

Besides Nigeria...China

The country that worries me the most in the world when you take everything into account, is China. You have the second most powerful country in the world, a huge rival of the United States of America.

Right now, we're having a relapse of the Cultural Revolution in China. In the last year and a half, the Chinese government has shut down every large evangelical church in the country.

When ISIS was moving across Syria and Iraq tearing down crosses off of churches and doing all these horrible things to people, in one state in China, the Chinese government removed 1,200 crosses from churches. It's not just Christians, I mean, in the Western part of the country, they're between four and 500, what the Chinese government call "reeducation centers." What they actually are, are concentration camps, where they have put Chinese Muslims to try to forcibly change their beliefs.

Despite an agreement to dismantle only part of its annex, local officials proceeded with a full-scale demolition of a church in Sanjiang, near Wenzhou in Zhejiang province.

Yet, the faith has never grown at such a rapid pace. In the same China where they keep shutting down all these churches and taking religious symbols off of churches, there are now more Christians in China than there are members of the Communist Party.

It's not just China, it's North Korea, it's Iran. It's several other Arab countries. the US Commission for International Religious Freedom, we have more than a dozen countries in the very top category. We have like 20 others in the second category.

The most dangerous places for Believers

1. N. Korea 19 consecutive years.
2. Afghanistan: Mental hospitals
3. Somalia
4. Libya, 5. Pakistan, 6. Eritrea

This year, as the United Nations estimates half of North Korea's population is in need and 41 percent is undernourished, North Koreans are bracing for the worst. North Korea reduced rations for its people in February, and in May the regime took the rare step of publicly admitting there was a crippling drought. A typhoon in early September has made the problem even worse, destroying crops and farmland.

For Christians in North Korea, the threat is even greater. Already forced underground because of their faith, their access to even the small food rations provided by the government will be taken away if it's discovered they follow Messiah.

If Christians are found out, they can immediately be sent to prison camps, where they work and live in subhuman conditions, forced to eat even less than drought conditions might provide.

It's no wonder that believing parents can't even share their faith with their children. To be a Christian in North Korea is to worship Messiah in isolation, with limited access to God's Word. Open Doors estimates there are around 300,000 secret Christians in North Korea, all of whom live and worship in unthinkable conditions.

An Open Doors co-worker recently met a North Korean underground leader we'll call "Brother Yi." "I met him in China for the second time this year," says this Open Doors partner. "Last year, he received an audio device with the Bible and other materials on it from me. He takes care of a network of 15 people.

He shared a lot of food with the people around him—so much so that he was called for interrogation by the authorities. He still uses the audio Bible we gave him for his personal Bible study. I also supported him with food, medicine and clothes.”

Iran

Abouzar Soltani, an Iranian Christian, and his 11-year-old-son Armin. Soltani had been living in blue containers since late 2018 after asking for asylum on political and religious grounds. Soltani recently "thanked God" after he was moved to a reception center following 17 months of detention in a container camp on the Hungarian-Serbian border. However his legal case continues, the Hungarian Helsinki Committee rights group told Worthy News. Soltani could face a lengthy prison term and potentially execution in Iran for abandoning Islam.

Every day, an average of eight Christians were killed for their faith and 23 Christians were raped or sexually harassed for faith-related reasons. Every week, an average of 182 Churches or Christian buildings were attacked, and 102 Christian homes, shops or businesses attacked, burned or destroyed. Every month, an average of 309 Christians were unjustly imprisoned for their faith.

(Worthy News) - Aid workers say thousands of desperate people, many of them Christians, have fled an area in northern Mozambique after Islamist fighters killed dozens of villagers.

Police confirmed that militants linked to the Islamist State terrorist group beheaded and dismembered over 50 people in Mozambique's Cabo

Delgado province last week.

In the peace accord between Israel and the kingdom of Bahrain, the first paragraph of the Abraham Accord includes religious freedom.

First Amendment Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Persecution is actually a norm.

In early American history, every family had two books. They had a Bible, and they had Foxe's Book of Martyrs.

Christian persecution around the world is worse, at its all-time worst, two times a year, Christmas and Easter. That's when the churches are bombed. That's when people are kidnapped. It's predictable. It's like clockwork.

So, will this ever apply to us in America?

Here is the best analysis so far of the possibility Pres. Trump has, by Alan Dershowitz, a truly great constitutional lawyer. Pray that it is so. It actually has happened several times in US history, but all in the 1800s. Forward freely.
