It took 17 volunteers, who live in several countries, three-and-a-half years to build the replica ark, which is made out of donated gold and some three tons of Egyptian Acacia, according to “Jake” the project’s chief architect, who prefers to remain anonymous, and Lewis Topper, its principal financier.

“We went with the highest purity of gold available to the Egyptians,” Jake said at the event. “The purity used for royal artifacts is around 23.75 carats, so we went with 23.75.”

[24K is 100% gold]

It has the Golden Ratio—a relationship between values that has been seen as beautiful since ancient times and which appears in nature, including human anatomy—played a “very important part in the design.”

[Conch shell]

“The ark weighs around 85 pounds, so it is pretty heavy,” he said. The structure’s legs and poles, “need to sustain the load for extended periods of time.”

“What the ark represents is the fact that the covenant is still valid. It was never abrogated, and the covenant is still strong,” he told attendees. “God’s commitment to His people is as strong as it was 3,500 years ago when the Ark was built.”

“It should be the weapon that walks in front of the army,” he said. “We truly believe that it should be both a weapon and inspirational too.”

[But it’s not the Ark, but faith, obedience, and the Presence that bring victory!]

We all, beholding as in a glass the glory of Adoni, are changed into the same image, even as by the Spirit of Adoni.

Its replica has been to Mara Lago to show President Trump

But this is a move in the right direction of the supernatural Presence, IMHO

NEVER AGAIN: the phrase gained currency in English thanks in large part to Meir Kahane, the militant rabbi who popularized it in America when he created the Jewish Defense League in 1968 and used it as a title of a 1972 book-length manifesto.

“The motto Never Again does not mean that ‘it’ [a holocaust] will never happen again. That would be nonsense. It means that if it happens again, it won’t happen in the same way. Last time, the Jews behaved like sheep.”

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu uses it to speak about the need for a strong Jewish state in the wake of the Holocaust.

Nevertheless, it happened again. Jews massively helplessly massacred.

6:29-6:50 a.m.: First sirens sound in the Gaza border communities of Nahal Oz, Ofakim, Kfar Aza, Nir Oz, Kissufim, and Be’eri, as well as the city of Sderot.

Only a few moments later, sirens sound across southern Israel and the Shfela region, as well as in Tel Aviv and nearby cities in central Israel. At this point, most of the nation was hiding in shelters. In Kfar Aza, Ynet photographer Roi Idan takes the first footage of Hamas paragliders entering Israel. Minutes later, his wife, Smadar, is killed before he himself is murdered while holding his three-year-old daughter, Abigail.

Some 3,500 revelers attended the Nova music festival near Kibbutz Re'im the night before. At 6:32 a.m., party organizers announced the event had ended and called on everyone to leave. Most left towards the car park.

A traffic jam ensues at the exit from the Re'im festival area as only one route.

6:50: Hundreds of terrorist invaders begin entering Israeli towns, from terrorists on jeeps seen driving through Sderot to infiltrations of Be’eri, Kissufim, Ofakim, and Nahal Oz. By 7:20 a.m., an emergency standby squad of the kibbutz near the Erez crossing identifies some 20 terrorists making their way towards the kibbutz.

7:50: Footage surfaces of armed terrorists driving white pick-up trucks in the southern city of Sderot, spreading quickly on social media and news outlets and sowing panic among Israelis.

9:00: Ronen Engel is killed by terrorists while attempting to defend his family. His body is taken to the Gaza Strip. At 9:26 a.m., Ronen's wife, Karina, is taken captive, while their two daughters, Mika and Yuval, are taken captive.

9:30: Terrorists begin a mass massacre and mass murder of whoever is on site of the Nova festival. 364 civilians, Israelis, and foreign nationals were horrifically murdered as videos of fleeing party-goers flooded social media. During this time, terrorists who had infiltrated Kfar Aza began massacring and kidnapping residents.

10:36: Sha'ar HaNegev Regional Council announces that its head, Ofir Libstein, was murdered while fighting to defend the kibbutz.

10:55: Abigail Idan is taken captive along with the family by whom she had taken refuge, Hagar Brodutch and her three children. All five would be released from Gaza captivity in the November hostage release deal.

12:15: Terrorists take control of areas and homes in kibbutz Be'eri and begin to de-facto occupy much of Israel's south and Gaza border area. In these hours, Nira Sharabi saved seven other kibbutz residents that terrorists were attempting to take captive. Nira's husband, Yossi Sharabi, and her brother-in-law Eli are kidnapped to the Gaza Strip.

1:00 pm: Israeli troops arrive at Kissufim, after hours of Hamas occupation.

2:00 pm: Israel's security cabinet convenes for the first time in the day, seven-and-a-half hours after the invasion begins.

2:00 pm: In Be'eri, some 40 terrorists embedded themselves in homes, transferring the 15 hostages they had taken in the kibbutz to houses under their control.

2:17 pm: The first group of IDF soldiers reach the site of the Nova party.

2:30 pm: Officers from the Border Police's YAMAM counter-terrorism unit rescue police officers who were in a police station that was surrounded and subsequently torched by Hamas terrorists.

4:31-4:37pm: A tank that had arrived on the scene fires two anti-tank missiles onto the house occupied by Hamas.

4:50 p.m., the terrorists' on-field commander surrenders. The firefight continued despite the commander's call to surrender.

7:57pm: Israeli special forces begin regaining control of the occupied home in Sderot. Out of the 15 hostages detained in Cohen's home, only two survived.

Michael Koubi, former Israeli SHABAK Senior Officer and Head of Interrogation, who had interrogated Yahya Sinwar extensively during his imprisonment, In an interview after October 7, 2023, Koubi added:

[<https://unitedwithisrael.org/watch-former-interrogator-reveals-chilling-testimony-of-sinwars-cruelty/>]

“I knew Sinwar almost better than his own mother did. After 180 hours of interrogation with Yahya Sinwar, believe me I know him, I smell him, I eat him, everything. You know, he is the man that I will never forget. Sinwar is the cruelest man

I've ever met ... Yahya Sinwar was a murderer.

He kept dreaming all the time how to kill Jews. That was Yahya Sinwar. For him it doesn't matter if it is a boy, a child, a woman, or anyone. He wants to kill Jews, you know, by machete. That was his dream. He told me that the best way is to kill them by machete. That was during the interrogation. On the 7th of October [2023], [Hamas] used machetes and they also used guns and rifles.”

It is now two weeks since the rescue of the Yezidi hostage Fawzia Amin Sido from captivity in Gaza by the IDF in a joint operation also involving the US Embassy. Fawzia has been returned to her family in the Sinjar area of northern Iraq. This week, she sat for her first interview since her liberation. Fawzia Sido, aged 9, was captured with two of her brothers by Islamic State in the summer of 2014. Following their capture, she and one of her brothers, Fawaz, were made to take part in a forced march from Sinjar to Tal Afar, at that time under the control of Islamic State. The journey took three or four days, during which time the Yezidis were given no food by their captors.

On arrival to Tal Afar, according to Fawzia, 'They told us that they would give us food. They made rice and they gave us meat to eat with it. The meat had a weird taste and some of us had stomach aches afterwards.' "When we were done, they told us that this was the meat of Yezidi babies. "They showed us pictures of beheaded babies, and said 'these are the kids that you ate now.' One woman suffered heart failure and died shortly after. The mothers of these babies were there also. One mother recognized her own baby because of its hands."

From Avner Boskey: "While some analysts may argue that Hamas's underground tunnel network is its greatest strategic advantage, the current conflict has starkly revealed a more disturbing truth.

[https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=O4m_EL9Dj2U]

In fact, Hamas's most potent weapon is the Palestinian civilian population. Putting civilians in harm's way is no coincidence; it has been done by design.

Hamas's leadership has always understood that Palestinian deaths in a conflict with Israel creates leverage over the Jewish state despite the group's role in perpetuating the violence" (Joe Truzman, Senior Research Analyst at 'Long War Journal')

One Year: Never Again ... Again

1. Why this holiday?
2. This day last year.
3. Why the disaster, failure
4. Lessons for us.

The basic reasons for the disaster and failure were

1. Wokeness and arrogance by Israeli Jews.
2. Betrayal and anti-Semitism. Satan hates the Jews.

In the Passover liturgy we are reminded that “in each and every generation they arise against us to destroy us.” The consolation is that The Holy, blessed be God, presumably saves us from their hands.

[We need to ALWAYS be trusting the Holy One, Messiah.

Jerusalem Post analysis:

For years we told ourselves Hamas was the easy enemy. It was contained and deterred. Reports say that the assessment was that it could never carry out an attack of this magnitude.

It was supposed to be capable of only firing rockets. Israel had a “smart” fence along the border that was supposed to detect any activity.

Many voices warned over the years that Israel’s ground forces had become too invested in special forces and technology. They were also focusing on the West Bank and the North.

Israel treated Hamas like a known quantity, one that receives backing from Qatar and Turkey, two US allies, and one that can be reasoned with.

Economic incentives, jobs, good will can overcome Islamism. [Islamism vs Islam, distinction!!]

[<https://www.jpost.com/opinion/article-768059>]

From WestPoint.edu:

On October 9, Egyptian intelligence said publicly that it had given Israel repeated high-level warnings of a pending attack—“something big”—before the Gaza-based Hamas struck, including a direct phone call from Cairo’s intelligence minister to Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in late September.

Hamas intentions may have been, and may still be, severely misunderstood. Israeli leaders may have calculated that Hamas would not wage such an attack in part because Israel was providing economic incentives for peace.

[The Jews thought, “We’ve been good to them. They’ll be good to us.”]

Permanent peace with Hamas could not and cannot be bought; research on actors with “sacred values” such as Hamas militants shows that material incentives for peace backfire and invoke moral outrage.

Israeli woke mentality surrender

When the Israeli soldiers approached the underground tunnel, the six Israelis—Hersh Goldberg-Polin, Eden Yerushalmi, Carmel Gat, Alexander Lobanov, Almog Sarusi and Ori Danino—were brutally murdered with “shots to the head and heart.”

“The bodies were still warm when the Israeli soldiers reached the tunnel,” a security source told me. The media blamed the government and Netanyahu, saying the blood of the slain hostages is on their hands.

“The detailed report stated that the American delegation, arriving on a private plane from Turkey, landed at Payam-e-Khorram Airport in Karaj on Thursday and held a two-hour meeting with Iranian officials before returning to Ankara.”

At this meeting, the greatest betrayal of all was consummated: “the delegation presented a list containing the names of ten Mossad agents inside Iran, whom the Americans believe were involved in the assassination, directly or indirectly.”

The effects were seen immediately. “[A]fter the reported visit by the U.S. delegation, ‘more than two dozen people, including senior intelligence officers, military officials, and staff workers at a military-run guesthouse in Tehran,’ were arrested in response to the assassination of the Hamas leader,” according to the report.

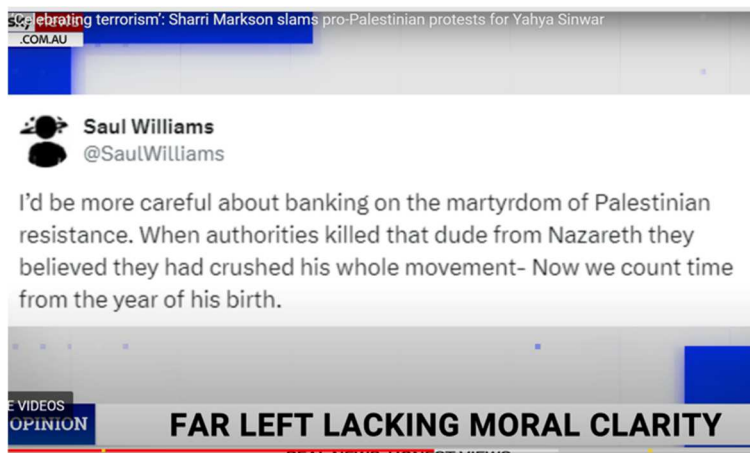

Are those two dozen people suffering unimaginable horrors in Iranian prisons today because of the Biden-Harris regime’s anxiousness to betray Israel? It sure looks like it.

Over the last Jewish calendar year, 31,000 Olim (immigrants) arrived in Israel from more than 100 countries around the world despite the disruption of the Swords of Iron War, according to data released in advance of the Jewish New Year by the Ministry of Aliyah and Integration and The Jewish Agency for Israel. Around 10,000 foreign workers from the southeast African country of Malawi are expected to arrive in Israel by the end of the year to support industries such as agriculture, construction, elder care, and tourism, according to Malawian parliamentarian Joyce Chitsulo.

In February, Malawi's parliament approved the program following a fact-finding mission to Israel, where 700 Malawians were already working. Chitsulo noted that despite the conflict between Israel and Gaza, these workers were content and had no desire to return home.

Every Arab nation that has made peace with Israel is being blessed and flourishing, like Egypt, Jordan, Sudan, the United Arab Emirates, Morocco, and Chad. However, those nations that have not made peace with Israel are starving and suffering from poverty like Yemen, Iraq, Iran, Syria, and Lebanon.
